An Important Step In American Education

The Indianapolis public school system is doing something that ought to be copied by the schools of every town and city in the nation. This year every senior in the city's high schools is being taught the advantages of the American private enterprise system and how the system actually works in the marketplace. Industries and homes of Indianapolis last year, and thereafter, every school child in Indianapolis, from the 4th through the 12th grade, will be included in the first year program designed to create a better understanding and appreciation for the American way of life.

This encouraging development in Indianapolis has been prompted by a careful study of what high school graduates don't know and the educational deficiency of the city's school system. The study was made by a panel of people themselves and for a program being developed to fill an extremely important educational void has the aid of a group of all groups in the city: industry, organized labor, the professional, religious, banks, etc.

Didn't Know

The Indianapolis study which was carried on during the summer of 1949, was designed to find out what high school graduates don't know and the educational deficiency of the city's school system. The study was made by a panel of people themselves and for a program being developed to fill an extremely important educational void has the aid of a group of all groups in the city: industry, organized labor, the professional, religious, banks, etc.

Insurance Extension
Facing to a recent national survey of high school seniors showing that 60 per cent of them believe the profit motive could be eliminated without destroying our economic system, the Chamber of Commerce is planning to develop a program to make profits the basis of the great motivational force in building the nation.

When an Indianapolis youngster enters the father's home for the first time, he is told, "the father probably doesn't realize that the business world because of a desire to make profits is sending his father to bring home food and clothing for the family and to save money that will enable the boy to have a college education. The new program should give the boy a better appreciation of what the private enterprise system provides for the family."

Goodwill Nationwide

This is getting around at long last to one of the most important responsibilities of our educational system and to the right way. Every child has a right to know the same educational facts that the Chamber of Commerce has been spreading for years and years.

"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE" Think Constructively

ONCE I TALKED with the son of General Ike Eisenhower, who, you don't need to be told, is one of the ablest and one of the most popular men in the world today. Knowing that every person finds some people along the road that are not friendly toward him, I asked this young man, who was a cadet at West Point, what his father's attitude was toward his enemies, or even toward the people who didn't genuinely like him.

Young Eisenhower looked thoughtful for a moment, then said, "Well, I'm sure Dad never wastes time thinking about people who don't like him; you see, he always thinks constructively."

Here's a quotation from Elbert Hubbard, that philosopher who during the early part of this century gave us those helpful and immortal essays called Little Journeys.

"Do not fear being misunderstood and do not waste a minute thinking about your enemies. Try to fix firmly in your mind what you want to do; then without veering, move straight toward your goal. Keep your mind on the great and splendid things, and as the days go gliding by, you will find yourself unconsciously seizing upon the opportunities that are required for the fulfillment of your desire. Thought is supreme. Preserve a right mental attitude—the attitude of courage, frankness and good cheer. To think rightly is to create. All things come through desire and every sincere prayer is answered. We become like that on which our hearts are fixed. Carry your chin in and the crown of your head high."

It would be a good idea to clip these words of Elbert Hubbard and place them in your billfold. Before you wear out this slip of paper from taking it out to read it, type them on a card for future reference.

THIS WEEK IN Washington

DESPITE A NUMBER of important measures being passed, the Congress has not yet begun to look as though the Congress might adjourn in the middle of its undisturbed business and end the first session of the 81st Congress history.

A conference committee on the tax bill was expected to agree in most instances with the Senate-passed measure. Major provisions as passed by the Senate were: increase of 11 per cent on present taxes of individuals on, eight per cent on income after taxes, which over is less; raise in maximum effective limitation from 67 per cent to 63 per cent with no change in the 25 per cent capital gains tax effective date was Nov. 1, 1951; increase in corporations' normal rate from 25 per cent to 27 per cent and in surplus rate from 22 to 25 per cent, giving a top bracket combined rate of 52 per cent on normal and surplus; ceiling of 17 per cent then can be taken in excess of profits; retention of average earnings credit for excess profits tax at 25 per cent of earnings in the three best years in the four-year period 1945-49 effective April 1, 1951; no change in maximum capital gains.

Insular as individuals are concerned, the bill means they will pay about 2 per cent more taxes on 1951 income, while next year they will pay about 13 per cent more for married folks up to $20,000 and singles up to $15,000. On higher incomes, the tax increase will be smaller percentage-wise. Higher withholdings will be required on pay on or after Nov. 1.

For farm crops—they are still tax exempt except for a corporation tax on earnings and distributed to partners. Mutual savings banks and savings and loan associations must pay corporate tax on earnings, but are allowed deductions for losses on loans and amounts paid to depositors or credited to their accounts. A maximum of 15 per cent of income must be set aside for reserves, or a larger per cent of net assets as long as total reserves, surplus and undivided age of our high school seniors get any real grasp of the economic factors and forces that are responsible for the high standards of living. The program being built by Indianapolis is patterned after the Youngstown area, five counties, plan which developed in three of my columns last February and which formed the basis of my address last spring to the Atlantic City convention of the American Association of School Administrators. The Youngstown school program is far advanced. Special text-

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare.

Those who are interested in how communism operates once it comes to power should read a vivid and horrifying article by Peggy Durkin in the October 18th issue of the Saturday Evening Post, called "They're Ruling China by Mass Murder." Miss Durkin obtained her information from refugees from Governor, N. Y. Tribune-Press: We have embarked on a campaign to save the rest of the world from bankruptcy, social injustice and Communism, but we cannot hope to pursue it successfully, unless government, generally is prepared to reduce its costs to the point that we can afford to make the extraordinary contributions the times demand of us."

By LYLE HULL

THE SOCIALIST GOVERNMENT of Great Britain has proved to those who didn't know it already, that five days ago per cent of humanity's brain and known power is not quite sufficient to run the "economic machine" during the French Revolution at the end of the 18th century the Communists, who were then in power in France, decreed that everyone should work seven days per week. It was found that men just could not stand that much work, and the system was soon rejected. Just what the "happy medium" is has never been proved, but probably five and one half days is a fair assumption.

Now it is claimed that with the use of modern machinery and methods, as much can be accomplished in five days as was formerly done in six. But the requirements of today far exceed those of past eras. The "movement" is infinitely more rapid and more accelerated, and as this "movement" accelerates it is apt to require more of man's time rather than the reverse.

Beside these assumptions—and proven principles—is the fact that the world is at war and that the winner of the preparedness campaign is going to win that war. In the hands of our enemy the five day week does not maintain. The masters there have a purpose—world conquest—and the human desire to do as little work as possible just isn't tolerated. How then can we hope to successfully oppose them if we permit them to outdistance us? And doesn't Britain's economy as opposed to the comparatively thriving condition of the other western European countries prove the contention that only through hard work can success be attained?

It is very depressing to read nearly every morning that some labor leader has talked his union into striking for a five day week. It makes many readers suspect that his motives are not quite as patriotic as his platform performance would indicate.

Red China who had fled to Hong Kong.

Miss Durkin begins her account with this paragraph: "The Chinese communists are writing a new chapter in the long history of brutality and oppression in China. Since last fall they have arrested, executed or condemned to hard labor more than 1,000,000 people. They are making a ruthless, systematic effort to exterminate every potential enemy of their regime and to terrorize the balance of the population into passively accepting communist rule."

In order to accomplish these ends, trials and executions are public spectacles. Every technique of arousing mass hysteria against the accused is employed. The proceedings are broadcast in lurid detail. In some cases, as in trials in the small villages, attendance by local residents is compulsory. On occasion the spectators are furnished with sheets of slogans. They are urged by cheerleaders in thundering "Shoot the beast! Kill, kill, kill!"

As Miss Durkin observes, life has always been cheap in China. But in the whole long history of that country, there has never been anything to compare to this. The killings are not the result of a simple, savage blood-lust. They are coldly planned, by Mao and his leaders, to make sure that no lot of opposition to communism shall exist. The noncommunists are terrified into cooperating with the regime and following every order faithfully. The accused, whether guilty of anything or not, are rarely defended—and on the occasions when they are, the defenders are certain to be arrested.

The Chinese communists, borrowing a leaf from Stalin's book, encourage children to inform on their parents for alleged anticommunist activity or, for that matter, anti-communist thinking. The parents are executed, and the child is called a hero of the people. Says Miss Durkin, "It is a foolhardy non-communist parent who speaks frankly and freely before his daughters and sons."

All this is done, of course, with the trappings of legality. Last February, an amazing law for the Punishment of Counterrevolutionaries was promulgated. It authorizes imprisonment and death not only for espionage or sabotage, but for "spreading rumors" and "alienating and splitting the solidarity between the government and the people." As if this wasn't enough, an article in the code states that any counter-revolutionary activity not specified can be similarly punished. Then, to cap the climax, still another article makes the law retroactive.

Miss Durkin also points out that everything is done to arouse hatred for the United States, as a prospective conqueror and oppressor of the Chinese people. On many occasions the people are told that the accused persons—and the accused are always found guilty—were agents of the horrible American imperialists.

That, in brief, is how communism organizes a nation. In Miss Durkin's phrase, "The communists have substituted control by fear and force for rule by consent and persuasion."

Reading, Mich. Hostler: "Lincoln's deathless words, 'This government of the people, by the people and for the people' expressed exactly the intent of the founders of this republic. That intent assumed the existence of an alert legislation-conscious citizenry, passing necessary restrictive measures through duly elected representatives. This was the greatest degree of personal freedom to be maintained that was consistent with an orderly society."

Humility Helps

ABOY went to his mathematics teacher one day with an algebra problem which presented difficulties. "It can't be done," he protested. "The book doesn't tell enough about it."

The teacher had heard that kind of tale before. She showed him that all he needed was to use a little patience in applying the rule involved, taking step after step in logical order. In fighting the problem, as mathematics teachers call it, drop his rebellious attitude, and approach the task with humility, before he could make progress.

Many of us have to learn this lesson. Often in daily life we try to fight the problem, only to find ourselves becoming more and more entangled in difficulties. Our self-will prevents us from finding the way out. But when we recognize that there is a law at work in the universe which expresses the one infinite intelligence, God, and learn to obey it, order comes into our experience. Then we can advance. Each step taken in accordance with this divine law of good leads on to the happy adjustment we seek.

This was the method which Christ Jesus revealed to the world. His humility set aside any thought of a selfhood apart from his creator. He said (John 5:30), "I can of mine own self do nothing;... I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me."

In his attitude was no self-abasement. It was not a case of one mind bowing before another, greater mind. Instead, as he overcame sin, sickness, all manner of evil, Jesus demonstrated that one intelligence, one Mind only, the Mind that is God, sustains and governs the universe, supplying always the right ideas needed to resolve all difficulties. Jesus said (John 14:10), "The Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works."

Self-will usually comes "in sheep's clothing," masquerading as virtuous, or at least as justifiable action according to mortal standards. But we can learn to detect and repudiate its arrogance with the strength of humility based on our understanding of the reality of being. Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 1), "Humility is the stepping-stone to a higher recognition of Deity."

Moses learned this lesson. At the outset of his career, while living as a prince in the palace of the Pharaoh, he became filled with indignation at the cruelty of the Egyptians towards his own race, the Israelites. Taking it upon himself to administer justice one day, resorting to self-will instead of obeying God's will, he tried to fight the problem by killing an Egyptian whom he found abusing an Israelite.

His violent act sent him into hiding in a distant land, where he lived as a shepherd. In the solitude of the desert he had abundant opportunity to give serious thought to what had occurred. It is evident from the narrative that he completely overcame his resentment and anger and began to contemplate the greatness and goodness of God.

Moses gave up self-will to such an extent that there came to him the revelation of God as the one Mind, the I AM, a concept which greatly blessed him and his people in the years that followed. His subsequent achievements in bringing deliverance to the Israelites bore witness to the power which accompanied this new understanding.

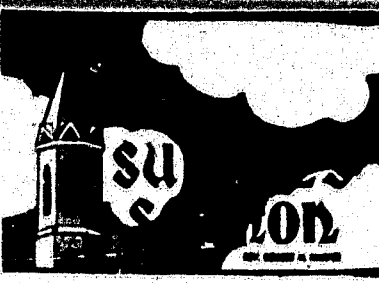

Today, as of old, progress attends the understanding of God and His creation. — The Christian Science Monitor.

REV. ROBERT H. HARTER

The Hebrews in Slavery
Lesson for October 28: Exodus 1:1-14; 2:23-25
Memory Selection: Isaiah 55:4

ABOUT FOUR HUNDRED years after Joseph's death, there arose a new king over Egypt, who "knew not Joseph." It is quite likely that in four centuries the Israelites had spread all over Egypt and had prospered. Certainly they had so multiplied that Pharaoh feared them as a menace to the safety of Egypt. In time of war they might unite with a warring nation and destroy Egypt.

It appears that the Pharaoh who began the oppression of the Israelites was Rameses II, one of the greatest of the Egyptian rulers. The time must have been about 1300 B. C. The monarch tried harsh means to reduce the number of the Israelites. From the murderous order that the first-born of every Hebrew home should be slain, a child was saved that should come in time to circumvent the plans of Pharaoh and deliver the people from bondage.

But Moses accomplished nothing by slaying an Egyptian taskmaster because he was hating an Israelite. He was forced to flee for his life to the land of Midian, beyond the Red Sea. But there God remembered his people, and he spoke to Moses out of the light of the flame of the burning bush and commissioned him to go into Egypt to deliver his people. And God took knowledge of his people and remembered his covenant and made them a great nation. And what Moses had failed to do in his own strength he was able to do with God's help.

BEGIN ANNUAL MEETINGS OF COUNTY EXTENSION ASSNS.

Annual meetings of county Extension associations in Maine will begin this week. Washington county will hold its session Thursday, Oct. 18, at 10 a. m. at Washington State Normal School, Machias, with Dean of Agriculture Arthur L. Deering, of the University of Maine, as speaker. Maine speaker at these meetings will be either U. S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith, of S. 1, or Governor Fred J. Sawyer, of S. 2. Other speakers will be either U. S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith, of S. 1, or Governor Fred J. Sawyer, of S. 2. Other speakers will be either U. S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith, of S. 1, or Governor Fred J. Sawyer, of S. 2.

Fire Prevention and Civil Defense Go Hand in Hand

Fire prevention is an important part of civil defense. If an enemy attacks this country, his bombs, whether they be atomic, high explosive, or incendiary, will cause more damage by fire than they will by blast. Hence, anything done to make it hard for fires to start is a step towards preparing your community to protect itself if war comes.

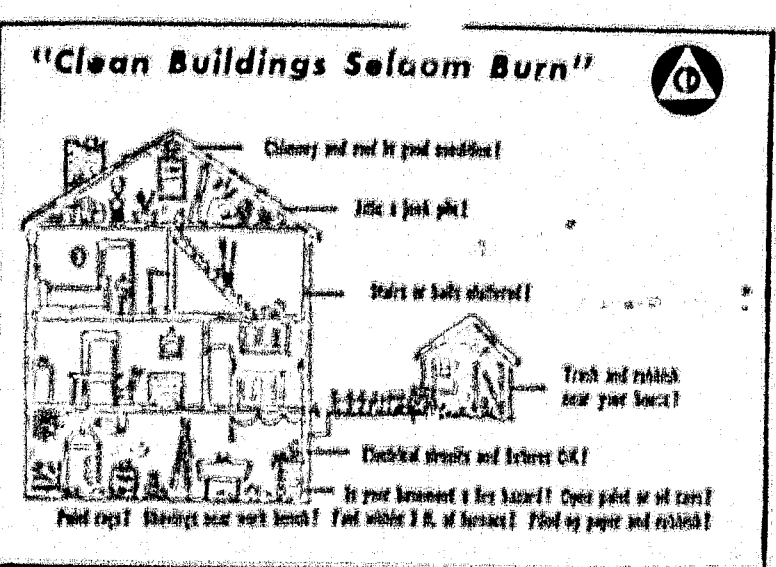

The majority of all fires start in chimneys. Others are caused by rusted or cracked pipes and fittings. Look over your heating system now. If your chimney needs it, clean it out. If the furnace pipes and connectors are cracked and rusted, replace them.

Check your family room to put magazines, papers, or clothing on radiators or near open flames. Don't hang flammable curtains near your kitchen stove. Don't allow lamp shades to come in contact with light bulbs. Remember that such things don't have to burn to burn. They will catch fire simply because they are too close to the heat for too long.

Gasoline, benzene, kerosene, and similar fluids should never be used indoors. When mixed with air, their vapors can be ignited by the spark of a light switch or an electric fan, or the tiny flame of a pilot light. Keep such fluids in tightly closed metal containers outside your home.

And remember: oil soaked rags, especially rags that have been used to spread quick drying fluids, such as turpentine, paint thinner, and some furniture polishes, can catch fire by themselves. Only rags should be stored in air tight metal containers. It is best to keep them from too much soot in outside the house.

TODAY'S Meditation

Thursday, October 25

"... we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him. . . . And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." (1 John 3:2, 3.) Read 1 John 3:1-6.

DEEP down in our hearts we all carry the hidden image of Christ, even those who wilfully turned away from Him; for it has been planted in us. This spiritual image is the portrait Christ gave of Himself in the Sermon on the Mount and in the parable of the Good Samaritan. But in our hearts it has become very indistinct. A layer of dust has made its features unrecognizable.

Once we realize this, we then give our efforts to clear the image. We find that we have to do this every day; for every day if we neglect this, new dust will gather on it. He helps us in this work of revealing the original features. More than that, His image takes possession of our whole being, so that it begins to radiate, love, peace, and purity of heart, and so lights up the remotest and darkest corners along our path in life. And thus we fulfill our destination. May Christ work this miracle in us.

Prayer

O God, help us, we beseech Thee, to fulfill our destination. Grant that we may reflect Christ, resemble Him, draw closer to Him day by day. Make use of us for the coming of Thy Kingdom on earth. In our Saviour's name. Amen.

Thought for the Day

Let us try today to purify our hearts that we may show Christ's image to others.

Ladies and gentle fellow citizens: nice people, wise guys, everybody I am going to tell you where you are going to get off if you don't take heed of what is happening in this USA, and what is not for your good. You are not one-half as smart as you think if you shrug off the predicament of the hickory grove. When the Great barges into Tennessee and the Pacific Northwest and now the Atlantic Southeast and puts on false whiskers, and claiming it is coming with patriotic motives when it pours your tax money galore into dams and steam-driven power plants, you are being given the old double cross and don't seem to catch on.

and time. Realism, if it came out in the open, and it was Socialism, just a socialist ticket in the field it would be smothered under. But socialism in sheep's clothing is not understood by the public, and you are not turning a hand. The electric light bulb, of which you may not have a lot, is what I am driving at. STATE OF MAINE
Oxford, ss.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners within and for the County of Oxford:

Respectfully Represents Arthur C. Garber of Bethel, in the County of Oxford and State of Maine, that he is the owner of land in said Town of Bethel, over and across which a highway has been located by the Selectmen for said Town of Bethel, according to a return filed by them with the Town Clerk of said Bethel on August 2, 1931, a copy of which return is herewith attached and marked "Exhibit A," that said location was accepted by the voters of the Town of Bethel at a special town meeting held for that purpose on August 11, 1931, that your petitioner is aggrieved by the acts of the Municipal Officers in their location of said way and also as to the damages awarded to him in their report for property taken in laying out said location.

Wherefore your petitioner appeals to the Honorable Board of County Commissioners and prays that they will set aside and rescind the report of the Selectmen and award to your petitioner such damages as to them appear to be just and proper. Dated at Bethel, Maine, this twenty-fourth day of September, 1933.

Arthur Garber
Personally appeared the above named Arthur C. Garber and made oath that the foregoing statements by him made are true.

KNIGHT - HALL CAMERON - HALL

The church at Hunt's Corner, Albany, was the scene of a pretty double wedding on Sunday, Oct. 14, at 2 P. M., where Miss Beverly Lois Hall was united in marriage with Archie Ricker Knight of Kennebunkport, and her sister, Miss Ramona Arlene Hall, became the bride of Angus Randall Cameron of Jefferson, N. H. Dr W. I. Bull and Rev. Hilda Ives performed the double ring ceremonies.

Decorations were of autumn leaves, baskets of chrysanthemums and candelabra.

Beverly, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white nylon, lace trimmed with train, a shoulder length veil, and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Mary Hall, who wore yellow tulle and carried white carnations. Her bridesmaids were Mrs. Ava Bumpus, Albany; Miss Ruth Hutchinson, West Bethel, and Mrs. Norma Andrews, Randolph, N. H. They wore silk gowns of orchid, blue and pink and carried white carnations. Her sister, Asahene, acted as flower girl, wearing a colonial style gown of pink organdy and carrying a white basket filled with rose petals. Her train bearer was Patricia Mosher of Erol, N. H. She also wore a colonial gown of blue organdy. The attendants all wore head bands of multi-colored chrysanthemums and ribbons. Edwin Bumpus of Albany was best man.

Romona was given in marriage by her uncle, Norman Hall, of Bethel. She wore a white satin gown with train and a finger tip veil attached to a sweetheart crown, embroidered with seed pearls. She also carried white roses. Her maid of honor was Mrs. Kathryn Drown of Randolph, N. H. She was dressed in rose tulle and carried yellow roses. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Jennie Potter, Miss Kathryn Cameron and Miss Millcent Cameron of Lancaster, N. H. All were sisters of the groom. They wore tulle gowns of aqua, rose and blue green respectively and carried colonial bouquets of pom-pom chrysanthemums. Her train bearer was Sharon Drown of Randolph, N. H., wearing pale blue organdy and the flower girl was Betty Ann Andrews of Randolph, wearing pink organdy, both dresses of colonial style. She also carried a white basket of rose petals. All her attendants wore head bands of multi-colored chrysanthemums and ribbons. The best man was Gerald Branson of Lancaster, N. H.

Miss Ruth Hall, cousin of the bride, played traditional wedding music, preceding the ceremony, also the bridal chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's wedding march. Others were Quentin Hall, Auburn; Robert Hutchinson, West Bethel; Richard Andrews, Randolph, N. H.; Alfred Weeks, Portland, N. H.; Ernest Dupras, Dover, N. H.; Frank O'Brien, Malden, Mass.

The brides are the daughters of Mr and Mrs Clyde P. Hall, of Albany, and both are graduates of Bethel Academy.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church vestry at which about 250 guests were present. Those assisting in serving were: Miss Athalia Hall, Miss Janice Stearns, Miss Ruth Hall, Miss Nancy Reed and Miss Barbara Blake. Miss Joyce Blake of Berlin presided at the punch bowl.

They received many beautiful and useful gifts. After cutting the wedding cake, the happy couple left amid a shower of rice and confetti. On their return Mr and Mrs Knight will reside at Kennebunkport and Mr and Mrs Cameron will make their home at Jefferson.

NON-FARM JOBS PLACED AT RUMFORD UP 51%

September non-agricultural job placements jumped 51 percent in the Maine Employment Security Commission's office, according to Manager Ernest F. Lever, Jr.

"This placement increase is due in part," Lever said, "to men and women who have been employed for the summer leaving to return to school or college, creating vacancies which must be filled." His office made an even 100 non-agricultural placements last month, compared with 65 in August.

Several jobs, calling for unusual qualifications, have been listed with the Commission's other 15 local offices, in an endeavor to fill the key jobs, Lever said. For example an order for an experienced accounting clerk, male, with a good salary, is cleared statewide. Other jobs thus cleared are for three blacksmiths, two experienced tractor operators, 20 heavy trucks, owner driven.

With the close of the harvest season, Lever noted a heavy drop in calls for agricultural workers, particularly in harvesting beans or other processing crops. Lever's office made 16,584 agricultural placements in August, peak of the harvest season.

Are you going to a skillful hunter or a careless murderer, when you pull that trigger? It's worth a minute's thought?

Johnny is a hero

by RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

A MOMENT after Johnny decided to speak to the girl in the cocky gray hat who sat across the aisle from him in the sleeper, the train stopped at a watering tank and bandits entered the car. Johnny saw a chance to make a hero of himself.

Since they had left Chicago he had been watching the girl in the cocky gray hat and trying to think up some means of striking up an acquaintance without appearing bold. Once or twice he had caught her eye; her expression was neither inviting nor cold. Yet Johnny hesitated. He didn't want to make any mistakes. This girl was rare among the girls he knew. He wanted to make an impression.

Presently an idea occurred to him. Why not mistake her for somebody else? Silvia Farhi, for example. Silvia Farhi was Hollywood's most recent sensation. This girl across the aisle resembled her. He could say to her: "Excuse me, I've been watching you. I knew I'd seen you before. You're Silvia Farhi!" That would flatter her and it would explain his constant observance of her.

A bandit with a gun in his hand was coming down the aisle. Johnny thrust out his foot and the bandit slipped. As he went down, Johnny hit him a terrific blow on the side of the jaw. Instantly pandemonium broke loose inside the car. There was a lot of feminine screaming and hoarse male shouting. A gun went off. The aisle was suddenly packed with people.

Johnny took the girl's arm. "This way, Miss Farhi," he said quietly. "There must be more of these chaps around. We'd better get out."

He fought his way through the crowd to the door, holding on to her arm. Another shot sounded. Johnny glimpsed two more bandits. The platform beyond the door he was reaching was empty.

Outside there was a huge water tank, a tiny dwelling house and the street. There were two cars parked beside the dwelling.

Dragging the girl, Johnny sprinted for one of the cars, thrust her inside and read on the meter. A man in a blue serge suit, holding a automatic, came running toward them. The car leaped ahead. The man with the gun stopped and fired. A bullet splintered the rear window. Johnny glanced at the girl. Her face was white, but the seat grimaced.

"Hurt?" he asked.

She shook her head. "Where are we going?"

"To the next town, notify the authorities, pick up the train there. If we stayed we'd lose everything. We had and probably get hurt. There were a dozen of those lads."

He hadn't seen more than three. He wanted to make the situation as dramatic as possible. He wanted the girl to think of him as a hero.

They tore along at a terrific pace. Johnny glanced into the rear-view mirror. Far, far behind a black smoke was following them. He gathered when they were kids.

Johnny returned to consciousness in a hospital. Outside, the desert lay hot and still. A nurse came in and stared at him proudly. She had a newspaper which she handed to him. Johnny read the headlines.

"Plot to kidnap Silvia Farhi, screen star, thwarted by youth from Chicago. Miss Farhi, returning incognito to Hollywood, recognized by John Hallam and saved from becoming a victim of one of the most dastardly crimes of the year."

Miss Farhi continues her journey by air. Hallam in hospital. Youth invited to visit screen star at her Los Angeles home."

Johnny grinned. He wondered what she thought when he had made that crack about playing to a mob was following them. He gathered when they were kids.

COUNTY SCRAP METAL DRIVE ON FARMS NOW UNDER WAY

A drive is under way to secure as much scrap metal as possible to help in the mobilization effort.

The Oxford County Agricultural Mobilization Committee feels that, since steel to produce the necessary farm machinery, equipment, and supplies represents an important volume in the requirements for this metal, there should be a high farmer participation in this drive. The committee believes that several hundred tons of scrap metal could be collected from the farms of Oxford County during the drive, which ends on November 5, and urges farmers to make an effort to pick up as much scrap as possible to help at this time in the production of more steel which is badly needed.

Nobody's Business

Twice this week we have been told of certain reckless driving practices, the habits of local or nearby citizens, which in time if continued would seem likely to result in a fatal accident. As usual, a fear of the law is the only reason that some of us behave at all good. Surely there are laws enough to cover the behavior under discussion and we believe there are officers enough hereabouts to justify improved conditions. Why not tell the officers? They can use some help.

There is no excuse at all for passing a school bus—in either direction—when it is stopped for its passengers. A new law provides a penalty if you don't stop, but common sense alone should make plain the danger of doing otherwise. Being sorry after you hit a child is no excuse.

We wonder some times why nothing is done about those hidden number plates. Yesterday we saw an expensive car with its registration plate—apparently Maine—two-thirds hidden behind a trailer hitch and the emblem of a prominent secret order. There are others not much better.

TEACHERS URGED TO SET UP PROGRAM FOR U. S. BONDS

Maine school teachers attending their annual convention in Portland Thursday and Friday will be urged to set up School Savings Programs under the Treasury Department's Defense Bond Campaign.

John C. Cass of the State Department of Education, also State Director of the School Savings Program, will set up displays at convention registration points and literature on the program will be available.

THIS IS UNITED NATIONS WEEK AMONG EXTENSION GROUPS

This is being observed as United Nations Week and month by the 400 women's Extension groups in Maine. They are discussing the United Nations at their October meetings, displaying U. N. flags they made last year, learning the locations of the United Nations by playing a new U. N. game, planning a letter writing campaign to French homemakers, and preparing, serving, and eating French dishes. The French dishes are prepared from recipes in a sheet written by Mrs. Helene F. Lee, a French war bride now living in Orono. The sheets may be obtained free from county Extension offices or home demonstration agents or by writing the Extension Service, University of Maine, Orono.
